Yippee for Mr Whippy

THE best things about seaside holidays are fish and chips, rock-pooling and Mr Whippy ice cream.

Paddling in the sea and building sandcastles are also big favourites.

Penny arcades and whiffs of fresh ocean air are popular too.

Warm sand underfoot and pierside strolls are other things we love about a "bucket and spade" staycation, a poll of 2,000 people found.

But the Vision Direct research also found 28% struggled to enjoy their hols after leaving contact lenses or glasses behind.

The firm's Barney Streeting said: "Many of us will be familiar with the feeling of arriving at a staycation destination, excited to start relaxing, only to discover that you've forgotten an essential item like your contact lenses."

Brits' favourite things about beach holidays - from fish and chips to sandcastles

More than half of Brits say they love everything the British seaside has to offer - but two-thirds say it is likely they will forget to pack essential items

By Andrew Young

16:37, 26 Aug 2022 | UPDATED 16:49, 26 Aug 2022

The best things about the "bucket and spade" holiday include eating fish and chips on the beach, building sandcastles, and Mr Whippy ice cream, according to research.

A study of 2,000 adults took a nostalgic trip down memory lane, and found 51% love everything the traditional British seaside has to offer.

Crabbing and visiting local tea rooms also feature in the top 20 list, as do penny arcades, pier strolls, and beach ball games.

But on the flip side, some of the worst things about a beach break include getting divebombed by seagulls,

express.co.uk/travel/beach/1660727/bea...

The screenshot shows the Daily Express website interface. At the top, there's a navigation bar with 'EXPRESS' logo, social media icons, and a search bar. Below that, there are category tabs like 'HOME', 'NEWS', 'SHOWBIZ & TV', 'SPORT', 'COMMENT', 'FINANCE', 'TRAVEL', 'ENTERTAINMENT', and 'LIFE & STYLE'. The 'TRAVEL' tab is active, and sub-categories include 'TRAVEL NEWS', 'ACTIVITY HOLIDAYS', 'CRUISE', 'BEACH HOLIDAYS', and 'SHORT & CITY BREAKS'. The main content area features a grid of article thumbnails. The featured article is 'Brits' favourite things about beach holidays - from fish and chips to building sandcastles' by Andrew Young, dated August 26, 2022. Below the article title is a short summary: 'The best things about the "bucket and spade" holiday include eating fish and chips on the beach, building sandcastles, and Mr Whippy ice cream, according to research. A study of 2,000 adults took a nostalgic trip down memory lane, and found 51 percent love everything the traditional British seaside has to offer.' There are social media sharing icons (Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, Pinterest, Email) and a comment icon. Below the article is a video player with the title 'Vision Direct challenges beachgoers with eye test game' and a thumbnail showing 'CHALLENGE: COUNT THE BEACH BALLS'. To the right of the article is a 'Most read in Beach Holidays' section, which is currently empty.

Brits' favourite things about beach holidays - from fish and chips to sandcastles

More than half of Brits say they love everything the British seaside has to offer - but two-thirds say it is likely they will forget to pack essential items

By Sarah Lumley
16:25, 26 AUG 2022

The best things about the "bucket and spade" holiday include eating fish and chips on the beach, building sandcastles, and Mr Whippy ice cream, according to research.

A study of 2,000 adults took a nostalgic trip down memory lane, and found 51 per cent love everything the traditional British seaside has to offer.

Crabbing and visiting local tea rooms also feature in the top 20 list, as do penny arcades, pier strolls, and beach ball games.

But on the flip side, some of the worst things about a beach break include getting divebombed by seagulls, and enduring sand in your sandwiches.

Britons reveal the worst things about beach holidays – seagulls, screaming children, no parking and more

According to research, the best things about this 'bucket and spade' vacation include eating fish and chips on the beach, rockpools, and Mr. Whippy ice cream.

But on the flip side, some of the worst things about a beach vacation include being dive bombed by seagulls and the sand in your sandwich being unbearable.

A survey of 2,000 adults taking a nostalgic trip down memory lane found that 51% loved everything the traditional English seaside had to offer. understood.

Eating crabs and visiting a local tearoom also make the top 20 list, as are penny arcades, pier walks, and beach ball games.

Nightmares trying to park, crowded beaches and screaming children everywhere are also an unfortunate part of a staycation.

In addition, 31% acknowledged that beach trips can go badly if they forget essentials such as sunscreen, contact lenses (9%) and sunglasses (29%). I'm here. Or sit (23%).

This study was commissioned by Vision Direct to highlight the fun of beach vacations, but highlights what can go wrong if you forget an important item.

Out of sympathy for those who left their glasses or contact lenses at home, from the bewilderment of beachgoers when given the task of counting beach balls in a visual puzzle., this has come true.

Contact Lenses Specialist General Manager Bernie Streetting said: Necessities like contact lenses.

The study also found that ocean views and letting kids dig holes in the sand were the best ways to

Brits' favourite things about beach holidays – from fish and chips to building sandcastles

August 26, 2022 No Comments

Crabbing and visiting local tea rooms also feature in the top 20 list, as do penny arcades, pier strolls, and beach ball games.

But on the flip side, some of the worst things about a beach break include getting divebombed by seagulls, and enduring sand in your sandwiches.

Having a nightmare trying to park, crammed beaches, and screaming kids everywhere are also unfortunate parts of a staycation.

Additionally, almost one in three (31 percent) admit their trip to the seaside can also go horribly wrong if they forget to take essentials – such as sun lotion, as well as contact lenses (nine percent), sunglasses (29 percent), or something to sit on (23 percent).

The research was commissioned by Vision Direct to highlight the joys of a beach break – but also what can go wrong if you forget

Brits' favourite things about beach holidays – from fish and chips to building sandcastles | Beach Holidays | Travel

By Basant Kasayap — Last updated Aug 26, 2022 LIFESTYLE

Crabbing and visiting local tea rooms also feature in the top 20 list, as do penny arcades, pier strolls, and beach ball games. But on the flip side, some of the worst things about a beach break include getting divebombed by seagulls, and enduring sand in your sandwiches.

Having a nightmare trying to park, crammed beaches, and screaming kids everywhere are also unfortunate parts of a staycation.

Additionally, almost one in three (31 percent) admit their trip to the seaside can also go horribly wrong if they forget to take essentials – such as sun lotion, as well as contact lenses (nine percent), sunglasses (29 percent), or something to

The screenshot shows the article page on the Luton Today website. At the top, there is a navigation bar with the Luton Today logo, a menu icon, and the tagline "News you can trust since 1891". To the right of the logo are social media icons for Facebook, Twitter, and Email. Below the navigation bar is a breadcrumb trail with two items: "Aldi's Kevin the Carrot toy is back to celebrate the Queen's Jubilee - how to buy one" and "Do dock leaves cure nettle stings? Here's what to do if you get stung". The main content area features a "Read This" label in red, followed by the article title "These are the top 20 best things about a 'bucket and spade' holiday" in a large, bold font. Below the title is the author's name "By Richard Jenkins" and the date "Friday, 26th August 2022, 1:03 pm". To the right of the author information are social media icons for Facebook, Twitter, and Email. Below the text is a photograph of a person's arm pointing at a large, colorful collage of images representing a seaside holiday. Below the photo is a short paragraph of text: "A study of 2,000 adults took a nostalgic trip down memory lane and found 51 per cent love everything the traditional British seaside has to offer."

Brits' favourite things about beach holidays - from fish and chips to building sandcastles

Crabbing and visiting local tea rooms also feature in the top 20 list, as do penny arcades, pier strolls, and beach ball games. But on the flip side, some of the worst things about a beach break include getting divebombed by seagulls, and enduring sand in your sandwiches.

Having a nightmare trying to park, crammed beaches, and screaming kids everywhere are also unfortunate parts of a staycation. Additionally, almost one in three (31 percent) admit their trip to the seaside can also go horribly wrong if they forget to take essentials – such as sun lotion, as well as contact lenses (nine percent), sunglasses (29 percent), or something to sit on (23 percent).

The research was commissioned by Vision Direct to highlight the joys of a beach break – but also what can go wrong if you forget crucial items. This was brought to life as beach-goers were left stumped when they were tasked to count the number of beach balls in a visual puzzle – in sympathy for those who have left glasses or contact lenses at home.

Barney Streeting, general manager for the contact lens specialist, said: "Many of us will be familiar with the feeling of arriving at a staycation destination, excited to start relaxing – only to discover that you've forgotten an essential item like your contact lenses." The study also found sea views, and letting the kids dig holes in the sand, are other best things about a "bucket and spade" staycation – as well as sticks of rocks, donkey rides, and rock pooling. But a trip can quickly fall apart when forgetting essentials, as more than a quarter (28 percent) of poor-sighted Brits have struggled to enjoy their seaside holiday after forgetting their prescription contact lenses or glasses.

Cuddling and using local bar rooms also feature in the top 25 list, as do penny arcade, pier strolls, and beach ball games. But on the flip side, some of the worst things about a beach break include getting drenched by waves, and enduring sand in your sandwiches.

Having a nightmare trying to park, crowded beaches, and screaming kids everywhere created unfortunate parts of a vacation.

Additionally, almost one in three (31 percent) admit their trip to the seaside can also go horribly wrong if they forget to take essentials – such as sun lotion, as well as contact lenses (19a percent), sunglasses (23 percent), or something to sit on (23 percent).

The research was commissioned by Vision Direct to highlight the joys of a beach break – but also what can go wrong if you forget crucial items.

The issue brought to life as beachgoers were left stumped when they were tasked to count the number of beach balls in a visual puzzle – in sympathy for those who have left glasses or contact lenses at home.

Dr. Steve Dowling, general manager for the contact lens specialist, said: "Many of us will be familiar with the feeling of arriving at a vacation destination, excited to start relaxing – only to discover that you've forgotten an essential item like your contact lenses."

The study also found sea terms, and letting the kids dig holes in the sand, are other beach things about a "social and active" vacation – as well as strolls of rocks, donkey rides, and rock pooling.

But a trip can quickly fall apart when forgetting essentials, as more than a quarter (28 percent) of procrastinated Brits have struggled to enjoy their seaside holiday after forgetting their prescription contact lenses or glasses.

This is despite 22 percent packing "everything including the kitchen sink" after going away, according to additional research of 2,000 UK holidaymakers.

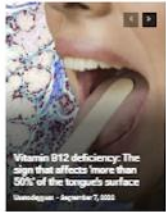

And in spite of their thorough packing ability, holidaygoers (33 percent) said it's still likely they will leave something behind.

The beauty of a trip within the UK means you can pack twice as much as you would for a trip abroad, according to nearly half (48 percent) of holidaymakers.

Crabbing and visiting local tea rooms also feature in the top 20 list, as do penny arcades, pier strolls, and beach ball games.

But on the flip side, some of the worst things about a beach break include getting divebombed by seagulls, and enduring sand in your sandwiches.

Having a nightmare trying to park, crammed beaches, and screaming kids everywhere are also unfortunate parts of a staycation.

Additionally, almost one in three (31 percent) admit their trip to the seaside can also go horribly wrong if they forget to take essentials – such as sun lotion, as well as contact lenses (nine percent), sunglasses (29 percent), or something to sit on (23 percent).

The research was commissioned by Vision Direct to highlight the joys of a beach break – but also what can go wrong if you forget crucial items.

This was brought to life as beach-goers were left stumped when they were tasked to count the number of beach balls in a visual puzzle – in sympathy for those who have left glasses or contact lenses at home.

Barney Streeting, general manager for the contact lens specialist, said: "Many of us will be familiar with the feeling of arriving at a staycation destination, excited to start relaxing – only to discover that you've forgotten an essential item like your contact lenses."

The study also found sea views, and letting the kids dig holes in the sand, are other best things about a "bucket and spade" staycation – as well as sticks of rocks, donkey rides, and rock pooling.

The best things about the 'bucket and spade' holiday include eating fish and chips on the beach, rock pooling and Mr Whippy ice cream, according to research. A study of 2,000 adults took a nostalgic trip down memory lane and found 51 per cent love everything the traditional British seaside has to offer. Crabbing and visiting local tea rooms also feature in the top 20 list, as do penny arcades, pier strolls and beach ball games. But on the flip side, some of the worst things about a beach break include getting divebombed by seagulls and enduring sand in your sandwiches. Additionally, 31 per cent admit their trip to the seaside can also go horribly wrong if they forget to take essentials such as sun lotion, as well as contact lenses (nine per cent), sunglasses (29 per cent) or something to sit on (23 per cent).
